
ABE ranks 2nd nationally

U.S. News & World Report released the 2016 “America’s Best Colleges” rankings, and in biological/agricultural engineering, Iowa State is the No. 2 ranked program among all national universities, and 2nd among public universities. The program is in three-way tie with Texas A&M University – College Station and the University of Illinois – Urbana-Champaign.

Hobart Beresford video archive

Hobart Beresford was born December 6, 1896 in Vinton, Iowa. He received a B.S. (1924) in agricultural engineering from Iowa State College (University) and a professional degree (1941) in the same field from Iowa State. He taught at the University of Idaho (1924-1927; 1929-1946). He also worked as an agricultural engineer (1927-1928) with the Idaho Power Company. In 1936, he worked with the U.S. Government on rural housing projects. Beresford returned to Iowa State in 1946 to become the Head (1946-1962) of the Agricultural Engineering Department. Beresford’s main areas of research include rural electrification and the handling and storage of agricultural products.
